Lorraine Allanson

History

Mountain Whispers is a boutique collection of five award-winning luxury properties in the Blue Mountains.

Inspired by the region's rich cultural heritage and beautiful natural surrounds, owner Lorraine Allanson began restoring these residences to their original grandeur in 2006. Her desire was to establish a suite of properties that offers guests contemporary comforts, privacy and luxury along with the character and ambience of a bygone era.

In order to capture for her guests the essence of a time known for its decorative extravagance, Lorraine has spared no expense in the painstaking process of complete renovation. She researched the history of each building in order to reinvent it with a sensitivity to its period of origin, taking note of original details and sourcing appropriate styles for hardware, lighting and furnishings. The resulting lavish accommodation is the outcome of her passionate quest for perfection.

Step back in time and relax in the delightful style of bygone eras in your choice from Mountain Whispers' boutique collection. Lorraine personally oversees every detail so that you will not only enjoy a truly memorable experience but also fall in love with the classic residences that she has restored to brilliant life.
